The credit for this successful year's work is due to Rev. B. E. Wentworth, who has been untiring in his efforts and unparagon of himself in this work. Mr. Wentworth as Minister of Education, having oversight of the Sunday Schools of the Parish, has made the plans for another 5-light Training School, which opens at North Waterford, Wednesday evening, closing, Tuesday evening of next week. Four courses will be given.

The East Stoneham church was filled to its capacity on this occasion, people coming from every local parish of the United Parish.

Next week, immediately following the opening school, will be made the Every Member Canvass for next year's financial budget. The Financial Committee are seeking to thoroughly canvass for this work, and a thorough canvass and a loyal response is looked for.

Josiah Adelmar Brown

Josiah Adelmar Brown passed away at his home at Northwest Bethel, last Thursday morning, stricken with a paralytic shock.

In 1867 he married Maria Holt of Albany and to them four children were born, Mabel M., Frank A., Virginia A., and Elaine. He is survived by his son, Frank, one brother, David B. Brown of Bethel, and four sisters, Mrs. Ellen Brown of Waterville, Mrs. Harriet Dwyer and Mrs. Anna Stearns of Bethel, and Mrs. Frances Wardwell of Albany.

He has four nephews, three nieces, eight grandchildren and several great grandchildren.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Brown lived in Norway for several years moving from there to Penobscot, Mass., where he was engaged in the tanning business for many years. He returned to Bethel about 25 years ago and since then has lived on his farm at Northwest Bethel.

He was a member of the Congregational Church, Grange, Grand Army, Masons, and Odd Fellows.

Funeral services were held at his late home Saturday afternoon, Rev. L. A. Edwards officiating. Interment was at Peabody, Mass.

BETHEL'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE RED CROSS FLORIDA RELIEF FUND

Mrs. G. L. Thurston has been able as a result of her efforts and the generous response of some of our citizens to turn in seven hundred dollars to the Red Cross Florida Relief Fund.

It is certainly an inspiration to feel ourselves a part of the great organization, the functioning of which, so vitally and beneficently, at the call of disaster and need, is one of the most hopeful and blessed features of our civilization today.

The drive for membership in the Red Cross will soon be on. It is hoped that it will result in a much enlarged membership, a strong enthusiasm and a revived interest in our chapter, which did such satisfactory work during the war, and which under Mrs. Whitney's and Mrs. Jordan's valiant leadership has been quietly but most efficiently "carrying on" since.

Judge, Friend of Harding, to Appear Here

Judge George D. Alden, eminent Massachusetts jurist, who is slated to lecture here on the opening night of the Chautauque, Friday, November 2, had the unusual experience of appearing daily for several weeks on the same platform with former President Harding when both were lecturing on the same Chautauque circuit in the west at the time when Mr. Harding was a Senator.

Judge Alden tells of an interesting incident which happened in Washington several years after this. At the time Harding was President there was held in Washington a convention of Lyceum and Chautauque lecturers. Judge Alden attended along with many others. A reception was arranged so that the lecturers might meet and shake hands with the President. As the long line of men passed down the room to shake hands with the President Judge Alden wondered whether Mr. Harding would remember him when he saw him.

As the Judge reached the President and offered his hand an expansive smile lit up the face of Mr. Harding and without a moment's hesitation he exclaimed, "Well, well, my old friend, Judge Alden. 'The Powder and the Match,' which latter phrase was the title of the lecture that the Judge had given when the two men were on the Chautauque platform together years before. And these followed as much of a reunion as was possible with a long line of impatient men waiting to shake hands with the President.

Judge Alden's lecture this year is "Attitudes and Vitality" and it is said to equal if not surpass "The Powder and the Match" for keen insight, pertinent humor and dynamic content. His lecture will be preceded by a concert by the vocalists, the Laddell Patton Trio.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

GOING HIM ONE BETTER

Dr. M. W. B. tells this one: "A few years ago, back when cotton was hitting the high spots and even the colored folks were in clover, a colored brother walked into an automobile salesroom in a nearby town and said: 'Boss, you-all de feller what sell Mistah Washington Smith that 'er superdix automobile?'"

"Yes, said the salesman, 'I believe we did.'"

"Well," said the colored man, 'Ah wants a superseven.'—Cincinnati Enquirer.

His Pet Aversion

Defendant (in divorce court)—We could get along all right if my wife did not have the habit of ignoring me entirely at times.

Judge—And you mean to base your defense on the fact that your wife ignores you?

Defendant—Yes, your honor, if there is anything that makes me see red it's ignorance from my wife.—Coppera Weekly.

Out of Control

It was past midnight and ominous tramp of heavy feet was heard on the stairs.

"What is that?" she cried, clinging to her husband's arm.

"Sounds like your father coming down out of control," he replied in the jargon of his profession.

TOOK COLD

First Chorus Girl—Did she take by expending herself in that extreme way? Second Lady—Yes—look cold.

Connubial Wisdom

That husband is the wisest And most successful, too, Who makes "wife" do exactly What she wants to do.

Interested

"You seem to take your wife to the zoo frequently."

"Yes."

"Is she interested in zoology?"

"No, she likes the display of furs."

Just Talks

Winks—He can talk on any subject. Jinks—He must be well posted.

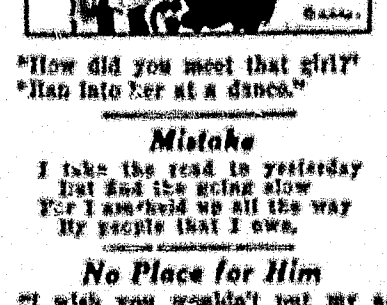

Winks—Gosh no! He doesn't have to know anything about a subject to be able to talk hours on it.

Ancient Wisdom

Tired Ted—Don't you wish ya had a wife, Walt?

Wary Walt—Nopes! I wouldn't be true to her motto of my profession: "Dey tell not, neither do they spin."

RAN INTO HER

"How did you meet that girl?"

"Ran into her at a dance."

Mistake

I take the road in yesterday But had the going slow For I am afraid up all the way By people that I own.

No Place for Him

"I wish you wouldn't put my advertisement in the army column."

"Seems to me that's good publicity. But what's your business?"

"I'm a dentist."

The Grass Crime

State's Attorney—Do you think we can convict him for that bank job?

Assistant—No, but I think we can get him the reputation that stop sign after the robbery.

Absolutely

"Everything he has is better than anything anybody else has."

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

The testimony of both parties was taken through an interpreter and took considerable time. F. A. Morey of Lewiston was attorney for the plaintiff and Allen Wheeler of Auburn for the defendant. The verdict was for the defendant.

The next case before the court was that of Louis Ayotte of Rumford vs. George M. Welch of Mexico. This was a suit to recover some $300 for repairs to a car belonging to Laforest Collins of Dixfield. There was a collision July 21 between Mr. Collins' car, a Hudson, and an Oldsmobile owned by Elson Welch, son of the defendant. The Collins car was taken to Mr. Ayotte's garage and repaired. The question was whether Mr. Ayotte had received instructions from Mr. Welch, the defendant, to repair the car at Welch's expense. Albert Hebl was the plaintiff's lawyer, and Matthew McCarthy represented the defendant. The verdict for $303.37 for the plaintiff.

The breach of promise case of Stephanie Jasad and Ben Pikelis, both Lithuanians of Rumford, was heard at some length Friday and settled before court opened Saturday morning. Juras were then executed until Monday morning.

The case Monday morning was a suit for damages brought by Mrs. Annie Britton of Rumford against the Rumford Drug Co. for $2,000. Mrs. Britton was struck by a falling sign while walking by the store of the Rumford Drug Co. on Congress Street, Rumford. She was rendered unconscious and suffered one broken rib and injuries to two others. Mrs. Britton is a widow with three children and is employed in a shoe store as saleswoman. She had to give up her work for several months as a result of the injuries. Albert Hebl was attorney for the plaintiff and George Hotelling and Matthew McCarthy for the defendant.

The next case was that of Everett McKen of Bethel vs. Albert Kimball of Albany, for damages to McKen's car in a collision at the foot of Mill Hill, Bethel, July 21. A cross suit, Kimball vs. McKen, for damages, was heard at the same time, Monday afternoon. The verdicts in both cases were in favor of McKen and he was awarded $125 damages.

Lesson for October 21

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

LESSON TEXT—II Cor. 8:1-15; 9:6, 7. GOLDEN TEXT—First gave their own selves to the Lord. PRIMARY TOPIC—Glad Giving. JUNIOR TOPIC—Glad Giving. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What is God's Grace on Us? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Principles of Christian Stewardship.

1. Examples of True Christian Benevolence (II Cor. 8:1-5). The liberality of these Macedonian churches exhibits practically every grand principle and motive which enter into the giving which has God's sanction. Observe:

1. The source of true giving (v. 1). This is said to be the grace of God, by which is meant that the disposition to give freely of our means is a disposition created by the Holy Spirit. This puts the Christian giving on a much higher plane than that which brings the people under the bondage of the law to give a tenth.

2. They gave from the depths of their poverty, not from the abundance of their riches (v. 2).

Their limited means did not cause them to restrict their gifts, but their deep poverty abounded unto the "riches of their liberality." On the basis of this philosophy our poverty ought to be a call for greater generosity, for God has promised that if we give liberally He will give liberally in return.

3. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3).

God's gifts are reckoned by the degree of willingness, not by the amount given (II Cor. 8:12; 9:7).

If such grace were to come upon the churches today, there would be an abundance of funds to carry on the Lord's work.

4. They were insistent on being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4). They did not need to be pressed into giving. How far we have departed from the apostolic method. Today we employ the shrewdest men in financial affairs that can be found to make appeals at our missionary meetings and the dedication of our churches.

5. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5).

This is most fundamental to right giving, for when one gives himself to the Lord there is no reason for withholding his gifts. If one does not give himself to the Lord there will be the desire to retain as much for self as can be done within the bounds of respectability. The only right method of raising money for the Lord is first to induce men and women to give their lives to the Lord and then to give of their possessions.

6. Emulation of Macedonian Benevolence Urged (II Cor. 8:13).

Moved by the generosity of the Macedonian churches, Paul desired Titus to commend to the Corinthians the same grace. This grace he urged upon them, giving:

1. Not as a command (v. 8). It must be spontaneous—liberal.

2. As a proof of the sincerity of their love (v. 8). Love is more than mere sentiment; it is benevolent action toward the object loved.

3. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7).

The Christian church abounded in spiritual gifts such as faith, utterance, knowledge, discernment, and in love for their ministers. But the grace of liberality was needed for the harmony of their lives.

4. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9). Self-sacrifice is the test of love.

5. Because the true principles upon which gifts are acceptable with God is a willing mind (v. 10, 12). God does not estimate the value of a gift on the ground of its intrinsic worth, but the underlying motive of the giver.

6. Because of a common equality (v. 13-15). Every Christian should give something. The law governing the gift is ability.

III. Encouragement to Give (II Cor. 9:6, 7).

1. The volume of reaping is based upon the sowing (v. 6). Those who sow sparingly cannot expect to reap bountifully.

2. There should be a heart purpose (v. 7). This calls for intelligence as to the object of giving.

3. Giving should not be of necessity (v. 7). No particular value accrues to the giver who gives through pressure.

4. God loves a cheerful giver (v. 7). The one who has the right understanding of his responsibility toward God with reference to temporal possessions will regard giving as a glorious privilege.

Tainted Blood Strain on the Financial Resources of the United States

By HARRY OLSON, Chief Justice Chicago Municipal Court.

HALF of every dollar of taxes in the United States goes to pay for the results of defective blood streams in the population. Punishment of crime and care of defectives consume half of all taxes because the feeble-minded and the emotionally abnormal continue to multiply, many of them inevitably becoming lawbreakers.

The policeman, the lawyer and the judge have been dealing with a medical problem about which they know nothing. Law enforcement cannot solve the problem because the normal people don't need law enforcement and the mental defectives won't pay any attention to it. A borderline class exists, nevertheless, for which enforcement of law is a deterrent. The juvenile court will have to be abandoned for something else. Although the juvenile court is an advance over the police court in dealing with children, it fails to straighten out crooked emotions and wavering intellect in children born defective.

The press frequently makes news out of the condition of mental and emotional defectives. Their acts make news, because they are out of the asylum. If they were in the asylum nobody would pay any attention to them.

In the next ten-year period there will be two or three times as many murders unless we adopt a new method.

Look at the fool idea we've had in education that you could take all sorts of children, put them into the public schools like a clean sheet of paper into a printing press, and have them all come out alike.

Prehistoric Skeletons

Skeletons of prehistoric animals have been unearthed in fossil beds recently discovered near Redington, Neb. One of the specimens is believed to be the skeleton of a mammoth. The skull is about four feet across and seven feet long. The complete head weighs 1,100 pounds. The five-foot jaw bone of another unclassified fossil was found. Further evidence of prehistoric life was discovered in the way of shells and prints of vegetation. The fossils were obtained from beds that are believed to have been the banks of an ancient river.

Why He Missed Her

The widower had just started in to tell a story when he suddenly broke down and began sobbing like a child.

"Why, what's the matter?" we asked him.

"Why, how can I tell a story without my wife here to butt in with corrections and advice and finally taking over the job of finishing it herself?" he wept.

Aviators Rout Locusts

In a campaign of destruction against a colony of locusts near the Egyptian-Sudan border, the British air force is using poison gas with effect. The young insects were discovered recently, and the aviators are trying to exterminate them before they become as thick as they did in Egypt during the time of Moses and Pharaoh.

MAKING THE MINUTES COUNT

I have just been talking with Gordon concerning the qualities of an intimate acquaintance of ours who has made the most outstanding success of any man in his line with whom I am familiar. We were trying, it possible, to analyze the personal qualities in him which made this success possible.

"I used to think," Gordon said to me, "that it was Gordon's keen intellect, the unusual character of his mind which brought him success, and I must admit he has these, but as I have come more and more closely into contact with him I believe it is his ability to utilize every minute of time in some effective way which has been his greatest asset."

"We have marveled sometimes at the amount and the variety of work which he turns out. I have been at his house a good deal and it is no marvel to me now. You never see him sitting with his hands in his lap, smoking or doing nothing. He is reading the latest new book, or writing, or making something. No wonder he gets a lot of work done."

I got a good lesson from Martin when I was a young fellow. Martin never wasted time. He lived in a suburban town and had to take an early train into the city. He always ate with his watch on the table beside him—not hastily but deliberately. He gave himself three minutes to get to the station a block away. He always walked along leisurely and without the agitation which so often induces indigestion. It was the way he managed his business affairs—he utilized every minute.

There are few things which a large percentage of the young people with whom I am acquainted have learned more thoroughly than how to waste time, and if a man wants to accomplish much in the world he must make the minutes count.

LAURA'S CARAWAY COOKIES

(By D. J. Walsh.)

MRS. SHAWL paused as she was going down the steps to ask the question which had brought her to Laura Welden's and which she had been deferring from reasons of diplomacy until this very moment.

"I suppose you will not try to keep house?"

Laura Welden smiled into the eyes of her old acquaintance. She would have smiled into the face of death itself such was her courage.

"Why, I don't know why you think I shouldn't keep my house, Alice," she returned.

"You could get a good price for it, that's all. I know whom you could sell it to. Mrs. Appleby."

A faint red mounted to Laura's pale face.

"Well, just the same I am not going to sell. I don't have to. Mr. Welden left me very comfortable."

Mrs. Shawl stared. She had heard something quite different.

"I'm glad if he did," she said. "Well, good-by, Laura. Come and see me."

Laura made an appropriate answer and then turned her back on the rushing gray, abundant figure. She went into her house and closed the door.

As she did so a mirror caught her full reflection. She gazed into her own eyes reproachfully.

"If I ever told a lie in my life it was when I said I was very comfortable. He started out to, but his sickness took a lot of money. All I have got in this whole world is my house, my furniture and the land about it and just about $1,000 in money. I can't live on that very long, anyway."

The enormity of her denial combated a sturdy pride in keeping the condition of affairs to herself. She was sixty-two years old and not particularly strong, that is, her body was too light for the vigorous engine that propelled it. And she knew human nature. People like to be shocked even though it be misshapen a friend. If she sold her house and moved out into rooms everybody would sympathize first and nod afterwards.

"Well, Laura Welden has always held her head high. She can't expect to keep it there forever."

Now realizing these and many other things, Laura Welden sat down to try conclusions with a destiny so obvious that at first there seemed no sense in wrestling with it. She concluded presently that she would not sell her house. Her beloved house! She looked about it with yearning eyes. She had been twenty-eight when Iarad Welden gave her his love and protection and the first home she had ever known. Perhaps home meant more to her than to most women. She had always thought so.

She ran over ways and means. Don't you know? Then her house would cease to be a home in the true sense. She had no children, no near relatives to aid her. She had nothing but her two hands and her head.

Suddenly thought and apprehension overpowered her and she sprang to her feet seeking relief in action. Going to her immaculate kitchen she whipped up her fire, got out mixing bowl and molding board. Within ten minutes her spirits were rising in the pleasant occupation of making cookies. She cut them neatly in oak and clover leaf designs and sprinkled them with caraway seeds. As they came hot from the oven she sifted sugar over them. They smelled and looked most tempting.

Filling a plate with the cookies she went across to Miss Field's. Miss Field lay in her porch hammock, still frail after a long illness.

"I've brought you a plateful of my cookies, Miss Field," Laura said. "I thought maybe they would tempt your appetite." She whisked off the napkin and presented her offering.

Miss Field looked, tasted—tasted again. Her face brightened with pleasure.

"Why, Mrs. Welden! These are wonderful!" she exclaimed. "I never tasted anything so delicious or saw anything so attractive. Do you know," she laughed, "if I possessed an accomplishment of this kind I would make my fortune?"

"What do you mean?" breathed Laura.

"Why, I'd take these cakes and pack them in pretty boxes and sell them to city people for fifty cents a dozen. You Miss Field! I'm astonished!"

"I would call them the Laura Seed Cookies, and I'd advertise them so highly that soon all the world would be knocking at my door."

"Now you are joking," said Laura. "But all the same you have given me an idea." Her lips trembled. "And if you only knew how I've needed an idea."

She went back home and set to work again, this time animated by something more than neighborly kindness. Her color flew, her fingers trembled, but her heart was high with hope. It seemed a great absurdity, this treating in a mere caraway cookie to lead one to success. And yet it was a door. She meant to open it wide.

All the rest of that day she worked feverishly. She burned up a candle in her coal. Her secret plan, her thoughts kept pace with her emotions. Inspiration came, too. These cookies she stamped a dainty "L." It was a beginning.

That evening, when a late hour, she worked packing cookies into little boxes which she had made herself out of buff cardboard, and lined with paraffin paper and tied with black cord. The cover of each box held a dainty inscription in black, "Laura Seed Cookies."

Next morning the paper held a startling advertisement for all the world to see. Next morning printed circulars were left at all the places where there were city boarders, at the shops downtown, at many private residences. The circular stated simply that Mrs. Welden was prepared to furnish Laura Seed Cookies at short notice.

Customers began to arrive. Before night the supply was exhausted. Money jingled in the blue pitcher. She was flushed, palpitating, happy. It was all she could do to snatch time to make more cakes. Then with a burst of triumph she realized that she would have to hire help.

The first week assured her that she had found a way to earning. A month established her reputation. By the end of summer she had built up a trade that extended as far as a neighboring city, where her cakes were eagerly sought as an accompaniment for afternoon tea.

Success continued without being phenomenal. It was one of those things which, being started, moves with comfortable celerity. Her kitchen range the instrument of achievement. She had hours of work, pleasant work with a competent helper. She began to order her boxes instead of making them, she added other designs—star and diamond and rosette, but the clover and oak leaf always remained most popular.

She kept her home, her self-respect, the admiration of her neighbors. Busy, happy, prosperous, she set a new standard in her own town for the woman who dares.

As for Miss Field, she became so interested in her friend's business that she was actually helped to complete recovery, a thing the doctors had despaired of. In time she was able to manage all the advertising part of the enterprise herself.

Old Custom Smashed

by Egyptian Woman

In all the many dynasties which have rolled over Egypt only one woman of the Nile has ever stood unveiled in the presence of a pharaoh and lived to tell the tale.

The one woman who has had this experience had it the other day when King Fuad of Egypt was the guest of the President of the French republic, Madame Haeckel, wife of an Egyptian newspaper editor, dared to do this thing. She was dressed by a Paris dressmaker and though it might have seemed the strangeness of being unveiled that nerved her to this act of daring, there was something also in being connected with the liberty of the press.

Thus, little noticed by grave historians, great changes come to pass. Madame Haeckel may come to be remembered as one of the liberators of the women of the East from the bonds of custom that have bound them for centuries. Queen Vashti refused to come unveiled into the presence of King Ahasuerus and his court; Madame Haeckel has asserted the right of women to enter the presence of the king unveiled and look the monarch in the face.

Lunch "Dead-Line"

Charles T. Gwynne, vice president of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, tells of starting his business career as an office boy for Edison. One of his tasks consisted of providing sandwiches for Mr. Edison's lunch. But as the famous inventor often became so absorbed in his work as to forget his luncheon, Gwynne, about the middle of the afternoon, with a normal youth's appetite, couldn't resist devouring the sandwiches himself. Each day he ate them a little earlier, and all went well until about noon. Mr. Edison brought a friend to have lunch with him and found nothing but empty plates. Gwynne expected to be "fired," but Mr. Edison after some severe looks, simply remarked: "Well, after this, make the lunch 'dead-line' one o'clock."—Boston Globe.

The National City bank stands sixth among the largest banks in the English-speaking world. It is exceeded only by the Bank of London, according to the Boston News Bureau, a financial newspaper. Headed by the list given in the Boston News Bureau is the Midland bank with total deposits of $1,821,906,000, followed by the City bank with $1,738,240,000. Barclay's bank with $1,572,475,000, Westminister bank with $1,523,475,000 and National Provincial bank with $1,521,400,000. National City's deposits as of December 31 were $1,555,912,000. In point of capital structure the National City bank is the largest bank in the world. On completion of present plans the bank's capital of $30,000,000 will compare with $20,000,000 paid in capital of Barclay's bank.

Uses for Beechwood

Japanese make good use of the two varieties of beech trees, employing wood of the heavy beech of north-west Japan for floor joists or "gata," and the light beech of northeast Japan for umbrella handles. Until recently the material was used only for firewood, charcoal and railroad ties.

Deadly Gas

Carbon monoxide gas is odorless, colorless and tasteless. It is slightly lighter than air, but mixes readily with air.

NORTH PARIS

The funeral services of Gordon Wheeler were held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. I. Wheeler, Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 10th. Rev. James H. Barr of the Federated Church officiated. Howard Wheeler, Carl and Truman Emery and Lorenzo Cole acted as bearers and interment was in West Paris cemetery. The casket was surrounded and covered with beautiful flowers, silent tokens of sympathy to the family for the loss which they have suffered, this being the fourth death in the family in less than two years. Gordon was born in North Paris, July 24, 1913, and has always made his home here. This fall he was staying with his sister, Mrs. Lorenzo Cole at West Paris and attending school. He was a smart, active boy, very much interested in the things around a farm, an enthusiastic baseball player, his whole ideal being to be as good a player as his brother, Sherman Billings, who passed away a little over a year ago. Farewell dear Gordon, yet not for long farewell.

We're nearer heaven perhaps than we can tell. A moment's breath, or want of breath, and I'm gone.

Up through the golden gates we, too, shall go. And greet thee, in thy garments white as snow.

Ye are not far, ah, nearer than we dream. Thy place and ours—a tiny space between.

When work is done and Heaven's bells ring noon. We'll fold our working clothes and hasten home. Clasp hands in glory, ne'er to part or roam.

WHAT IT COSTS TO GOVERN US

The Expenditures of the Federal Government.

THE total expenditures of the federal government chargeable against ordinary receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927, were approximately $3,494,000,000. Had the government made a per capita distribution of this huge sum, every man, woman, and child in the United States would have received more than $30.

The cost of the executive office was $687,000 while the legislative establishment received about $10,000,000. Of this the senate received $2,781,000, the house $7,507,000, the architect of the capitol $1,692,000, and the government printing office $2,500,000. Many independent bureaus and offices exist, the total expenditure of which was $512,002,000. Some of the most important of these are: General accounting office, $3,886,000; board for vocational education, $7,354,000; interstate commerce commission, $7,494,000; United States shipping board, $13,820,000; United States veterans' bureau, $576,033,000. The expenditures for the District of Columbia were $37,757,000.

The expenditures of the Department of Agriculture were $150,270,000. The most important items here were: Forest service, $10,417,000; bureau of entomology, $8,251,000, and road construction, $92,607,000. The Department of Commerce spent $31,120,000, of which $10,940,000 went to the bureau of lighthouses. The Department of Interior spent $200,812,000, of which $93,792,000 went to the bureau of Indian affairs, and $220,830,000 went to army pensions. The total expenditure for the Department of Justice was $24,768,000, while that for the Department of Labor was $9,701,000. The Navy department spent $322,621,000, of which a large part went to the bureau of supplies, the pay of the navy alone taking $121,540,000. The bureau of aeronautics received $15,373,000 while the increase in the navy cost $38,832,000. There was a cost in the Post-Office department of $27,317,000 and in the Department of State of $16,514,000.

The total expenditure of the Treasury department was $250,708,000. Refunds under the internal revenue service accounted for $115,800,000 of this, while refunds under the customs service accounted for $20,501,000 more. The cost of collecting the internal revenue was $33,142,000, while the cost of collecting the customs was $17,264,000.

The total expenditure of the War department was $301,957,000. Of this sum $88,452,000 may be considered for nonmilitary purposes, such as the $62,604,000 for improving rivers. Of the military expenditures $123,550,000 went for the pay of the army, $17,625,000 for the subsistence of the army, and $10,045,000 for the air service. The amount of interest paid on the public debt was $757,704,000. (© 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

Dubious

When the late czar of Russia was staying at Balmoral, he and the late King Edward, then prince of Wales, went for a walk on the moors. Coming home they met an elderly man in a cart and asked if he would give them a lift. The prince, thinking that it would be of interest to the man to know whom he had driven, told him that this was the czar of Russia and that he was the prince of Wales. "Oh, yes," said the man, "and I'm the President of America!"

So mean he wouldn't give a fellow a bite if he owned the Sandwich Islands.

To the 5000 who daily become owners of the new Ford car

THE service obligation of the Ford Motor Company and its dealer organization is now growing at the rate of 5000 cars a day. It is to these new car owners that this message is addressed.

The new Ford is a remarkably fine car for one that costs so little. It is simple in design, constructed of the finest materials, and built to unusually close measurements.

These are the reasons it performs so wonderfully. These are also the reasons its service requirements are so few and the up-keep cost so low.

When you receive your new car, the dealer will explain the simple little things that should be attended to at regular intervals to insure the best performance. He will also tell you something of his own facilities for doing this work promptly and at small cost.

With the purchase of your car, you are entitled to Free Inspection Service by your dealer at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. This service is due you and we urge you to take full advantage of it. Proper care during this breaking-in period means a great deal to the life of your car.

With such efficient service as this from her refrigerator, the woman who enjoys entertaining may invite guests to her home as often as she likes; and the foods prepared in advance, while one has time to give them adequate attention, will be all the better for their waiting.

one to be served hot, one cold, green vegetables, milk and cream, will be welcome; and appetizers, salad materials and other accessories may be made ready and stored away in covered pans or bowls in some cold corner of the electric ice-box.

Meats may be cooked, or not, and placed in covered receptacles. Au gratin potatoes, or similar dishes, are quite as fine when reheated; so they may be entirely finished and set away on the top shelf of the refrigerator. Two desserts,

THE REFRIGERATOR PLAYS HOSTESS NOW

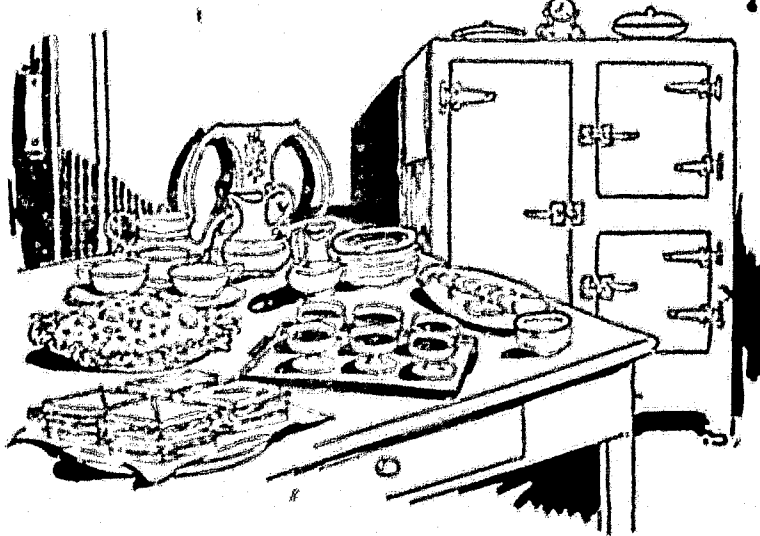

By KATHERINE G. CORNELL
Director of the Kelvinator Domestic Institute

WHEN company comes to the house which includes an electric refrigerator in its kitchen equipment, there is no fuss or worry. Even if there is no maid, and the housewife herself must be cook as well as hostess, there is no undue excitement, for the refrigerator assumes all responsibility. Within its clean, cold, sanitary chambers all of the good things for the refreshment of the guests wait invitingly until the time for their serving.

If the visit is for an evening at bridge, the salad, the delicate sweet sandwiches wrapped closely in a dampened cloth, the whipped cream for the coffee or the cocoa, the pressed fruit juices for punch have all been prepared in the morning, and placed in the refrigerator, where they will ripen and mature to the point of perfection. It is the work of but a few moments after the game, to cover the card tables with attractive, colorful tea cloths and set the good things before the guests.

Week-end Stocks Preserved

On, perhaps it is a week-end party at which one is preparing. Then the refrigerator is stocked much as one stocks the pantry, but with the more perishable, delicate food products. Soup to be served clear and hot, or cold and jellied; salad dressing which may be varied in a number of ways; meat, green vegetables, milk and cream, not forgetting a small bottle of the extra heavy kind for whipping. Even the batter for the Sunday morning waffles may be whipped together and will be all the lighter and more fluffy for a night in the refrigerator.

With such efficient service as this from her refrigerator, the woman who enjoys entertaining may invite guests to her home as often as she likes; and the foods prepared in advance, while one has time to give them adequate attention, will be all the better for their waiting.

Not all the joys of life come with the attainment of coveted goals; for hopes, dreams and aspirations carry with them their own reward.

What do we aim in our heart to do? What is the over-ruling passion of our lives? What is the big worthy thing that we aim to accomplish? And what if we fail? Are we not greater in failure than we would have been had we not aimed high?

WORDS OF WISDOM

Learning does not necessarily imply wisdom. Flattery that is rewarded is inexcusable.

Good listeners encourage people to talk too much.

Points paint with words and painters speak with pencils.

Few people try to look wise, but many try to look pleasant.

Paradoxical as it may seem, an odd genius is one who isn't odd.

Don't take any stock in the man whose capital consists of wind.

Every backbone worth anything has a knob of judgment at the top.

When some men bury the hatchet they go right out and dig up an ax.

If famous men had not been poor they might not have become famous.

Our deeds determine us as much as we determine our deeds. — George Eliot.

Love is the beginning, the middle and the end of everything. — Lacordaire.

Too much of the repentance now-days is done in broadcloth and ashes of roses.

If marriage is a mistake it is at least one that one doesn't make every day.

A merely fallen enemy may rise again, but the reconciled one is truly vanquished. — Schiller.

You will always find those who think they know your duty better than you know it. — Emerson.

Diversion at Hand if Palm Beach Was Dull

Barclay Warburton, the new mayor of Palm Beach, told a story at the Everglades club.

"It's astonishing," he said, "how many New England farmers leave their ice-ribbed farms in the winter and come to Palm Beach to enjoy themselves. We must see to it that they get plenty of enjoyment."

"Some farmers were chewing tobacco 'round the stove in a New England livery stable."

"No Abner Moss has gone to Palm Beach," said a farmer with gray whiskers. "Wonder if that'll be enough gold on down that to satisfy him?"

"He that's it may," said a farmer with white whiskers. "Old Abe ain't a runnin' no chances. He took his checkers and checkerboard along."

Undress

Maurice Ravel, the French composer, when asked by a New York reporter whether French women or American women dressed the more audaciously, replied:

"It seems to me that women all over the world are equally audacious as regards dress. But we are quite resigned now to the extravagances of post-war fashions. We refuse any longer to be shocked."

"A beautiful girl phoned into her mother's library. She was going to a masquerade ball, and she wanted him to see her costume."

"How do you like me?" she said, continuing to phoned. "I'm a cat!"

"A cat?" he said. "Splendid. A cat without the dressing?"

Mrs. Noyes was very well remembered on this occasion. A social afternoon was enjoyed after which refreshments were served by her daughters, Mrs. Grace Emery and Mrs. George Brooks.

A birthday surprise party was given Harris Hathaway at his home on Monday evening when several relatives and friends gathered to celebrate the occasion.

Mr. Hathaway received several gifts. Cards were enjoyed during the evening after which dainty refreshments were served by the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Meri Philbrick, Berlin, N. H., were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Farnum.

Don't forget the Harvest Supper and Sale at the Grange Hall next Friday evening.

Mrs. Grover of Waterford is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Andrews.

C. P. Kimball has gone to Boston to accompany his wife home who has been there for the removal of a ratarnet.

"Bridge" Not Russian

Bridge, was first known as Ditch, or Russian whist. This gave rise to the idea that it was a Russian game.

Dictionary of the Russian language do not contain the word. It seems more probable that the game is Levantine, since it was known in Constantinople and Greece about 1870, long before it invaded western Europe.

Molasses Not Treacle

The words "molasses" and "treacle" are often used as synonyms, but properly speaking molasses is the uncrystallized sirup produced in the making of sugar, while treacle is obtained in the process of refining sugar.

STOPPED CHILD'S COUGH

Adamson's Balsam that wonderfully reliable cough medicine stopped this boy's coughing spells with two doses.

"As quick as it touches the inflamed throat it relieves soreness. Quickly relaxes throat muscles and easily expels phlegm. Being free from irritation and sticky infected phlegm—coughing stops."

"Other ingredients attack the germs at seat of trouble and in a day or two all danger is gone."

Because Adamson's Balsam works so quickly and surely—it's the favorite all over New England. Contains no dope, harmful drugs or chloroform.

Try it for colds, sore throat, bronchial or plain cough. 25c and 75c. At all drug stores.

Largest Arch

The largest municipal arch in the world is the Arc de Triomphe in Paris, France. This edifice is 162 feet high and 147 feet wide. It was erected in 1800-1836 to celebrate Napoleon's victories.

Not Confined to a Few

I have found that the fame of moral judgment burns just as brightly in the man of humble and limited experience as in the scholar and man of affairs. —Woodrow Wilson.

Suspension Bridge Action

The action of the suspension bridge is that of a rope spanning between supports; for any load it finds the appropriate curve of equilibrium and is stable in that position. But as the adjustment to varying position of load results from change of curve, the roadway hung from the cable distorters—that is, the bridge is very flexible. It therefore may swing.

First National Stores Inc.
Where New England Buys Its Food

N. H. Hall, Mgr.

Yes, Sir—
a better tire!

You can find plenty of tire dealers who'll be glad to dick with you, tempt you with all sorts of "special" deals.

We can't. It goes against our grain to pad up list prices in order to give you a discount or a "long trade"—to make ourselves good fellows at your expense.

We've been in the tire business for a good many years. Watched the "bargain boys" and the "long discount" fellows come and go. Every year our business has increased.

Every year more shrewd tire buyers come to us for Goodyears—and they "stay put" on Goodyears. Now there's more reason than ever why you should buy "The World's Greatest Tire"—GOODYEAR.
